Description

The latest Redmine development trunk (1.4.x) has added support for multiple repositories per project.

Dues to these changes scm-creator only works if the repository is setup during the project creation stage. Any attempt to edit the current repositories on a project or to add an additional repository on a project generates an error 500.

Thanks for reporting!

I would not prioritize this issue as critical... It is going to be when 1.4.0 releases...

Redmine 1.4.x was released some time ago, and the issue reported here still occurs and is now critical.

Here are the corresponding logs in my case, when editing a repository; note that creation didn't raise any error but didn't create the repository either.

```

Please fix this issue, it would be a shame to have to remove such a great plugin because of it.

#2038 contains patch provided by Takashi Okamoto (thanks, user(Takashi)#111!). Working on including changes... Meanwhile you can use the patch.

I believe the issue has been fixed!

Sorry for the delay!

P.S. Error log above does not seem to be related to 1.4.x as 1.4.x does not use _repository.rhtml... Please report if you still get the error.

#7 - 19 Jun 2012 12:18 - Fabien Crespel

Thanks, r110 seems to work fine for me on Redmine 1.4.3 and 1.4.4
