Description

I'm thinking about how people are going to report bugs for Orangutan... Get URL, go for it, register or report anonymously? Too complicated! Most people will just ignore bugs...

How can I make Orangutan bug reporting easier?

The solution which came to my mind:

Orangutan can support special issue creation feature - when some special request is specified instead of local issue Orangutan creates "remote" issue for Orangutan website (which should use Redmine). He can even post this issue remotely using REST API. Of course, for bug reporting Orangutan should use issue creating contexts (maybe just in special mode). And, of course, trackers, categories etc should be taken from Orangutan website (can be hardcoded).
